

Nov 5th Research Update: Capturing Professional UIs

I started creating a dataset of professional user interfaces

- I chose about 40-50 sites from the 500 most popular websites
 - I avoided news sites because they were all photos of the election so I thought that would skew generated images
- I then took screenshots of a few pages from each site.
 - I tried to balance capturing similar pages from different sites to teach a certain concept, vs. capturing a wide variety of component types.
- We could label these images manually or send them to a online service for labelling

See dataset here

- 100 images, downsized to 1080px wide
- I did full-page captures, so some photos are very tall.
 - We could crop these by section and get many good-quality samples from a single tall photo.

Research Meeting Nov 5

- Try labelling with Grok - snippet of screen, explain the elements 1-5 sentences
- End of semester: hugging face and civit upload
 - Label how I trained it
 - Data on hugging face
 - Scripts on GitHub
 - Links to other locations
 - Download model
 - Download data
 - Readme - inputs and outputs like a presentation
 - Prof and I link from websites
 - Write short tool demo paper in springtime
- Keep simple but get a little more data and then mess with fine-tuning
 - Go from explore phase to pruning
